

Tubas Massacre

Five Palestinians, including two children, were martyred, and 10 others were injured on Saturday, August 31, 2002, in a new Israeli massacre. Two Israeli Apache helicopters fired four missiles at two Palestinian cars in the town of Tubas in the northern West Bank.

The attack resulted in the martyrdom of Ra'fat Dagma (33 years old), a member of the Al-Aqsa Martyrs' Brigades in Tubas and a member of the Palestinian military intelligence, along with two of his companions inside the car: Yazid Abdel Razek (13 years old) and Sari Sabih (15 years old). Additionally, two pedestrians who happened to be on the street during the attack were martyred: the young girl Zuhaira Burhan Dagma (6 years old) and her cousin Osama Ibrahim Mufleh Dagma (12 years old). This massacre occurred less than three days after the "Ajleen" massacre.
